SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That the said clerk and his successors in office shall, from time to time, on demand, and on receiving twenty-five cents therefor, prepare, sign, and deliver to each person made free or manumitted by this act, a certificate under the seal of said court, setting out the name, age, and description of such person, and stating that such person was duly manumitted and set free by this act.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, is hereby appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the President of the United States, to aid in the colonization and settlement of such free persons of African descent now residing in said District, including those to be liberated by this act, as may desire to emigrate to the Republics of Hayti or Liberia, or such other country beyond the limits of the United States as the President may determine: Provided, The expenditure for this purpose shall not exceed one hundred dollars for each emigrant.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That all acts of Congress and all laws of the State of Maryland in force in said District, and all ordinances of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

Approved, April 16, 1862.

Edward Everett said at a recent war meeting in Boston:

"We may, first, admit that we are unable to carry on the war, retire baffled and discomfited from the attempt, and sue for peace. Are you ready for that? Or, second, we may furnish the Government with men and adequate supplies, just enough to enable it, upon the whole, to hold its own, to gain a victory here, to suffer a repulse there—to capture strongholds and to put its ... one day, only to have to be taken again ... and invalid officers sent to their ambulance by murderous guerrillas the next; ... and so let the contest drag on for twenty or thirty years, like the wars of the French Revolution, the wars of the Commonwealth in England, or the thirty years' war in Germany; or, third, we may give the Government, at whatever cost, the means which it requires to bring the contest to a prompt and triumphant close. Is not this last the dictate of humanity?"

AMUSING.—The Richmond Whig lately got off the following:

"The city of Washington itself must be annihilated. There can be no peace until that nest of Yankee and traitors is exterminated. It is a bar to any satisfactory intervention by Foreign Powers and would forever constitute a hostile point in the event of a temporary peace. The fate of Carthage must be that of Washington. Let 'Stonewall' have one look at it, and we shall have no more trouble from that quarter."

TENDER OF SERVICES TO GOVERNMENT BY A VETERAN OF THE WAR OF 1812.—Col. H. B. Armstrong, the son of John Armstrong, Secretary of War under President Madison, and one of the heroes of the war of 1812, now 70 years of age, has gone to Washington to tender to the Government the services of himself and two sons in the present emergency. He is a war worn veteran, but is willing to spend the last hours of his life and to give his sons to the maintenance of the Union and the Constitution.

The News.

The most important feature of news received in our dispatches last night is the President's Proclamation declaring the slaves of the rebels free after the 1st of January, 1863, unless they lay down their arms and return to their allegiance to the Government of the United States. He deemed such a step necessary for the preservation of the Union, and, unless the rebel States comply with his request, by returning to the Union at the time specified, the proclamation will go into effect, let the consequences be what they may. The President delayed taking such an important step until recent events—the rebel raid into Maryland and Pennsylvania—compelled him to for the safety of the Union. The Confiscation law is also to be rigidly enforced, forbidding the return of runaway slaves to their masters by persons in the military and naval service of the United States. At a meeting of the Governors of almost all the loyal States held at Altoona, Pennsylvania, perfect unanimity prevailed regarding the emancipation proclamation by the President—all giving it their hearty support; and it will undoubtedly receive the earnest indorsement of every loyal citizen in the Union. The writ of habeas corpus is also suspended in all cases where persons are now or may hereafter be arrested by military authority. The Executive will also recommend in due time, that all loyal citizens shall, after the restoration of their constitutional relations, be compensated for all losses by the acts of the United States—including slaves.

Leading Eastern papers regard the emancipation message as the beginning of the end of the rebellion.

Buell, with his force, had arrived at Louisville, Ky.

At last dates, both armies were encamped on the Potomac, quietly awaiting further developments.

PUGET SOUND NEWS.—The Grand Jury at Olympia, last week, after a patient investigation of the charges against Victor Smith, found three indictments, one for malfeasance in office, another for resisting an officer, and a third for assault with intent to kill. We learn that Smith gave bonds for his appearance for trial on these indictments.

The schooner Potter, of Port Townsend, was yesterday seized by order of Collector Smith, for violation of a revenue law; said violation consisting, we understand, in the display of a flag while under sail, which it is lawful for none but vessels in the revenue service to exhibit. Lieut. Wilson, of the Shubrick, has taken charge of the Potter, and sailed in her for Seattle this morning. Victor is on the lookout for his enemies.

A court of inquiry in the case of Captain Crowninshield, on a variety of charges, we understand, has been for some days in session at Fort Steilacoom, several officers from other posts having come here last week for that purpose. An inquiry is also, we learn, being made respecting the conduct of Lieuts. Blake and Israel.—Puget Sound Herald.

The Sacramento Union says: Harper's Weekly—once so conservative that it discharged one of its most brilliant contributors in obedience to the demand of Southern subscribers—has become intensely radical. If the influence of that journal is as extensive as its circulation, who can wonder at the growth of the anti-slavery sentiment in the loyal States?

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION.—The telegraph office in Sacramento received a portion of the overland dispatches last night direct from Chicago, a distance of two thousand eight hundred miles, being the greatest extent of direct telegraphic communication ever accomplished.

The Statesman says: We learn from L. C. Bond, that a son of D. H. McClure, aged about six years, was drowned in a well last Tuesday, some two or three miles east of Albany. He had been missed for some time, and when found was dead.

MINERS AND INDIANS.—We are informed that a company of men, numbering about one hundred, have organized, armed and equipped themselves, at Auburn, Powder river mines, for the purpose of pursuing and chastising the Snake Indians for killing and robbing the emigrants. It is said that some of the members of this party are emigrants whose trains have suffered from Indian depredations. They will be likely to find some of these treacherous and troublesome Snakes; and their stock, together with what they have stolen, will furnish a rich booty to the adventurers.—Washington Statesman.

EMIGRANT SETTLEMENT.—It is estimated that nearly a hundred emigrant families have settled in the Grand Ronde valley the present year. Most of them are in comfortable circumstances, and are at present engaged in getting in their winter supply of provisions.—Statesman.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2[illegible]—The President's emancipation proclamation is generally approved here. The Republican newspaper predicts that it will restore to the President all his old friends and unite the sound portion of the people in favor of the Union and the Constitution.

The Intelligencer regards it as a harmless production, but adds that if it proves otherwise it will open issues too tremendous for calculation. Army officers appear to acquiesce. Some of them express their warm approval.

Complaints having been made against Governor Stanly, the conduct of his administration is under examination by the Government.

The alleged treason of General Miles in surrendering Harper's Ferry is still talked of in official circles. There is good reason for asserting that if it had not been for this surrender the rebels would undoubtedly have received a death blow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—An exchange of ten thousand rank and file, and three hundred officers, was effected at Harrison Landing yesterday. Pope's officers were not included, but it is understood that they will be exchanged this week.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.

The following dispatch dated New York, Sept. 23d, was received at 10 A. M. to-day:

To H. Teschemacher, Chairman of the Central Relief Committee:

Your magnificent contribution will electrify the homes of the nation. Thanks to God and San Francisco for such unparalleled generosity. Equitable distribution shall be made on the strength of your bounty. We instantly telegraphed to our agents on the battle fields of Maryland to spare nothing, and your mercy will be stanching wounds and feeding and cooling parched lips before this reaches you. The cities of the North and West, already generous and devoted, will be reanimated to the utmost exertions in our cause when they find themselves outstripped at a bound by their youngest sister, golden San Francisco, furthest from the scene of war, but already nearest to the sick and wounded in her hospitals and battle fields.

(Signed) HENRY W. BELLOWS.

A counterfeit five dollar piece submitted by Messrs. Parrott & Co. is as follows: The diameter and thickness are the same as in the genuine piece, the execution is admirable, the die from which it was struck is doubtless in some way transferred from a genuine coin; the date is 1852, and the mint signet C under the eagle, denoting that it was issued at Charlotte, North Carolina. It resembles the genuine and is a dangerous counterfeit. Its value is little over $2 [illegible].

QUARTZ LEADS.—We learned while at Canyonville, lately, that there were in that vicinity two gold producing quartz lodes, that had been extensively prospected, and it is confidently expected that they will pay richly. One is located on the north base of the Canon mountains, and it is said that it will pay at least one hundred dollars per ton. One of the proprietors of the lead gave us two specimens in which the gold is readily to be seen with the naked eye. A large quantity of rock has been taken out, arastras put up and everything made ready for crushing as soon as the water becomes sufficient to drive the machinery.

The other lode is on the south side of the Canon mountains, on one of the tributaries of Cow creek, some three or four miles east of Hardy Elliff's. This lode is said to be very extensive, having been traced through the mountains some twelve miles. Quite a number of claims have been taken up, and a good deal of machinery is said to be on the road there. All of the parties interested are confident that they have a fortune. Who can calculate the amount of wealth hoarded up in our mountain fastnesses?—Jacksonville Sentinel, Sept. 2[illegible].

BOASTINGS OF RICHMOND PAPERS OVER THE BATTLES IN MARYLAND AND CAPTURE OF HARPER'S FERRY.—Fortress Monroe, Sept. 22.—Richmond papers of the 20th, as usual, claim the victory at Boonsboro, Maryland, and say that Hill's forces was sufficient to hold in check McClellan's army, and that next day, with the assistance of Longstreet's division, they defeated McClellan.

The Richmond Whig claims that more prisoners were taken at Harper's Ferry than were taken by the Federals in Maryland.

Charles Stewart was sentenced Thursday morning in the circuit court for this county, to a term of three years in the Penitentiary, and a fine of $500, for shooting at with intent to kill, a man known as "Big Jeff," on the night of the 3d inst.—Statesman.

DATES TO SEPT. 25.

The President's Proclamation.

Slaves to be Emancipated in all States that do not Return to their Allegiance by Jan. 1st, A. D. 1863.

Rebel Loss at Antietam, 25,000.

Rebel Loss in Maryland, 30,000.

Both Armies Encamped on the Potomac.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—A proclamation has been issued by the President, the substance of which is as follows:

I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy, hereby proclaim and declare that, hereafter as heretofore, the war will be prosecuted for the object of practically restoring the constitutional relations between the United States and the States thereof in which such relations are or may be disturbed.

It is my purpose at the next meeting of Congress to again recommend the adoption of a practical measure, tendering pecuniary compensation to States, the people of which may not be in rebellion against the United States, which may then have voluntarily adopted or may voluntarily adopt the immediate or gradual abolishment of slavery.

On the first of January, 1863, all persons held as slaves within the State or part of States, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then and ever after free. On that day, the Executive will designate by proclamation, the States or part of States in which the people shall be in rebellion.

The fact that any State shall on that day be in good faith represented in Congress by members chosen by a majority of the electors, shall, in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, be deemed sufficient evidence that such States have not been in the rebellion.

The President quoted the new articles of war, approved March, 1862, and also the 9th and 10th sections of the Act to suppress insurrection and punish treason and rebellion, approved July 17th, 1862, and enjoins upon all persons in the military and naval service the enforcement of said articles and sections.

The Executive will, in due time, recommend that all loyal citizens shall, upon the restoration of their constitutional relations, be compensated for all losses by acts of the United States, including slaves.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23.—Gen. Wright has rescinded the order requiring the suspension of business daily after 4 o'clock. On every Saturday, however, between the hours of two and five, business will be suspended; and the citizens of Newport, Covington and Cincinnati are to meet for drill.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Tribune regards the emancipation message as the beginning of the end of the rebellion.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Dispatches dated headquarters of the army of the Potomac, Sept. 23d, says information received from rebel deserters who came in yesterday show their loss in general officers during the late battles to have been greater than ours.

Rebels admit their loss at the battle of Antietam to be 25,000, and since the invasion of Maryland, 30,000. An Alabama brigade commanded by Col. Corning, has not been able to muster over 50 men since the battle.

BALTIMORE, 24th.—The American correspondent from Sharpsburg under date of 22d says both armies are lying quietly with the Potomac between them, awaiting developments. We hold the river at Sharpsburg in strong force, while the rebels hold the opposite bank. We also hold Williamsport with sufficient force to repel any attempt of the rebels to dislodge us.

NEW YORK, 24th.—The Herald's special dispatch from Washington, says a reconnoissance to Ashley's Gap, returned last night; at the Gap the Federals met the 6th Virginia cavalry and dispersed them, capturing a few prisoners, among whom was Lieut. Col. Green.

Later.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 24.—No Federal troops had passed into Virginia up to 4 P. M. on Tuesday.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 24.—The Governors of nearly all the loyal States met here to-day, according to agreement. Fourteen were present, and three represented by proxies. Unanimity prevails regarding the President's Emancipation Proclamation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The Herald's dispatch from Altoona, says the conduct of the war has been the topic among the Governors. Two propositions have been discussed. First: To demand the immediate removal of McClellan; Second: Approval of the President's Emancipation Proclamation. Gov. Sprague, of Rhode Island, urged the removal of McClellan. Todd, of Ohio, and Curtin, of Pennsylvania, opposed the proposition. Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, made an hour's speech in favor of both. He urged that McClellan be removed and Fremont take his place.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The President has issued a Proclamation relative to rebel sympathizers giving aid and comfort to rebels, or endeavoring to hinder enlistment or resisting draft, and making all such persons liable to trial by military authorities.

The habeas corpus act is suspended in respect to all persons who are now, or may be hereafter, arrested by military authority.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 24.

There is great rejoicing at the immediate proximity of seven divisions of Buell's army. The enemy seem to be concentrating at Bloomfield. About 12,000 of them were seen this morning beyond Salt River on the Bardstown road.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 25.—Gen. Buell has arrived.

Gen. Nelson issued an order permitting resumption of business.

To-day, our cavalry captured 40 rebels at Georgetown.

On the 21st, three regiments under McCook drove 3000 rebels out of Mannsfordsville; rebels lost a Colonel and a Lieut. Colonel.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—After the evacuation of Cumberland Gap the Federal Gen. Morgan marched on Richmond, Ky., and recaptured that place with a large amount of stores and prisoners.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.

It has been semi-officially stated that our loss at the battle of Antietam was 9,220 in killed, wounded and missing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Surveyor General Hammond has just returned from the battle field between Manassas and Bull Run. He reports that our people had buried 3,000 rebels, who were left dead, although the rebels held the field after the engagement. There are yet 600 rebel corpses to be interred.

New Resource for Wealth.

[illegible]

The [illegible] in the Southern States [illegible] the price [illegible] consequence of none of that kind of material being produced or manufactured in this State.

Turpentine, Pitch and Rosin so much used on the Pacific coast for the caulking of vessels and other purposes, [illegible] the interior war of the States nearly to be led to price [illegible] that the North Carolina and Georgia companies [illegible] or no exports [illegible] pitch or Turpentine, and [illegible] of such articles on this coast being comparatively small in proportion to the demand, the value is [illegible] land speculators to give the [illegible] benefit. Oregonians, with their usual [illegible] ness to look ahead, have as yet apparently to learn that the very timber land [illegible] so much despised by some, can be made to yield a heavy income at less expense than even farming upon them. The [illegible] of Oregon contain a gum or pitch, equal to the Georgia and North Carolina pines, do [illegible] equal—not only equal, but threefold as valuable—and if Oregonians will study the fact that vast forests exist here, and hereafter there will be a market, if one of export can only once be started on this coast. Why cannot Oregon supply Chili, California, Sandwich Islands and other places on or in the Pacific, with Tar, Pitch, Rosin or Turpentine?

The following is the process for making or collecting such products.

How Turpentine is Produced

The immense forests in North Carolina, which cover the sandy ridges between the swamps and water courses, consists almost wholly of the long leafed pine, the Pinus palustris of the Southern States. From them is gathered one of the great staples of North Carolina the turpentine. And although this product and its derivatives are, in our country, almost in as common use as bread and meat, very little is known of the manner of procuring them. We will therefore endeavor to describe it accurately. These trees at maturity are seventy or eighty feet high, and their trunks eighteen or twenty feet in diameter near the base. They grow close together, very straight, and without branches to two thirds of their height. Overhead, their interlocking crowns form a continuous shady canopy; while beneath, the ground is covered with a thick, yellow matting of pine straw, clean, dry, level, and unbroken by undergrowth. The privilege of tapping the trees is generally farmed out by the land owner, at a stated price per thousand, say from twenty to thirty dollars. Under this privilege the laborer commences his operations. During the winter he chops deep notches into the base of the tree, a few inches from the ground, and slanting inward. Above, to the height of two or three feet, the surface is scarified by chipping off the bark and outer wood. From this surface the resinous sap begins to flow about the middle of March, at first very slowly, but more rapidly during the heat of the summer, and slowly again as winter approaches. The liquid turpentine runs into the notches, or boxes, as they are technically called, each holding from a quart to half a gallon. This, as it gathers, is dipped out with a wooden spoon, barrelled, and carried to market, where it commands the highest price. That which oozes out and hardens upon the scarified surface of the tree is scraped down with an iron instrument into a sort of hod, and is sold at an inferior price. Every year the process of scarifying is carried two or three feet higher up the trunk, until it reaches the height of twelve or fifteen feet—as high as a man can conveniently reach with his long handled cutter. When this ceases to yield, the same process is commenced on the opposite side of the trunk. An average yield is about twenty five barrels of turpentine from a thousand trees, and it is estimated that one man will dip ten thousand boxes.

The produce is carried to market on a sort of dray or cart which holds but two barrels, consequently the barrels are always seen setting about in the woods in couples. The trees at length die under these repeated operations. They are then felled, split into small sticks, and burned for tar. The dead trees are preferred for this purpose, because when life ceases, the resinous matter concentrates in the interior layers of the wood. In building a tar kiln a small circular mound of earth is first raised, declining from the circumference to the centre, where a cavity is formed, communicating by a conduit with a shallow ditch surrounding the mound. Upon this foundation the split sticks are stacked to the height of ten or twelve feet.

The stack is then covered with earth as in making charcoal, and the fire applied through an opening in the top. As this continues to burn with a smouldering heat, the wood is charred, and the tar flows into the cavity in the centre and thence by the conduit into the ditch, or into vessels sunk to recieve it.

GEORGE M. EVANS.

From the Oregon Farmer.

Powder River Valley.

This portion of the mining country east of the Cascades, seems to be at present the centre of attraction. Thousands of miners from other districts have lately gone thither, and some of the emigrants just across the plains have stopped at that point. Auburn, the chief mining town, has sprung up in existence since last June, and is now one of the chief trading points east of the Dalles. It is said that two hundred buildings are now being erected. Whether the mines will realize the great expectations is still a matter of some uncertainty. There is no doubt that the soil is rich with the precious metal, but the great scarcity of water prevents it being secured. It is feared that much can not be done until the spring opens, and then only for a short time. The mines are of such high altitude that the rains of autumn are speedily followed by cold weather, which locks the streams and entirely prevents mining. There is a [illegible] that when water is brought into the mining [illegible] it is, it can be that there will be [illegible]. But that [illegible]. It is feared that there are many more people already there than can [illegible] through the winter [illegible] that [illegible] that will probably reach that [illegible].
